Western Drama, * --

Lee Haney, advertising manager for the Midland Railroad, was once manager of a theatrical company playing "My Wife's Fat Uncle." One day the company struck Falls City, Neb. At each performance about five supers were needed. Among the supers secured at Falls City was a young fellow who had been working on a railroad construction gang. He told all his friends that day that he was to appear with the company that night. When the curtain went up half a dozen young men who knew him were in the front row. The young super persisted in whispering to these friends over the footlights. The stage manager was very much worried over the actions of the super, but could not come out before the footlights and call him down. At one place in the play, when the super was right up near the footlights, one of his friends, in a loud whisper.

"How you gettin' along as an act-

"Fine," was the reply in a hoarse "Goin' to be with the show reg'lar?"

asked the youth in the audience. "Don't know yet," replied the super, after he had taken a big chew of tobacco out of his mouth. "I gin't saw the foreman of the company about it vet."-Denver Post.

One who suffers with backache or any form of kidney trouble wants a cure, not merely temporary benefit. Rev. Maxwell S. Rowland, of Toms River, N. J., makes a statement in this connection that is worth attention. Says he: "I was suddenly taken with an attack of kidney trouble, had severe pains in my back and loins and was generally run down. Doctors were not helping me, so I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. They brought me prompt relief, and as I continued taking them the pains in my back disappeared and the kidneys were restored to normal condition."

Oleomargarine.

Dictionaries seldom pronounce words; it is a general case of dodge, because the lexicographers are not sure of their ground. Nearly every person you meet pronounces oleomargarine, that famous artificial butter, with the "ga" soft, as "ger." The emphasis in general is correctly placed upon the "mar." I said to a butter man who sells about a million pounds a year of genuine stuff: "What do you call this artificial product?" He replied, "Butterine." 'No; I mean its equivalent, oleomargarine?" "Oh, don't try to trap me. I call it the same as all dealers do-'oleo.' "Don't you use the full word?" "Never; leave that to the dictionaries." Yet we know that the "ga" in "margaros" is hard .- New York Press.

If you do you can get it. If you are anxious to get into closes touch with your friends, with the family doctor, with the store, with the post office, or with the cotton buyer, you can do it with a telephone at hand. If you want to make the farm a more livable place, if you want to protect your home, you can do it by installing a telephone.

If you will cut out this advertisement, write your name and address on the margin and mail it to-day to our nearest house, we will send you at once a copy of our Free Bulletin No. 102 to

"How to Build Rural Telephone Lines"

This Bulletin explains clearly how a rural telephone system is built and operated, and it also contains full information as to costs.

In a Farmer's Mutual Company a few day's labor and a cash investment of about $25. per subscriber, will purchase all material and build an absolutely standard system.

A Rural Telephone is an investment, not an expense. The telephone which enables you to sell ten bales of cotton at 34 cent per pound more than the traveling buyer offers you, has paid for its entire cost. If you have some hay down all ready to go in, it is worth something to have a telephone with which to call on Neighbor Smith "for a lift" before the storm breaks.

The Rural Telephone pays for itself each year and we have brought the initial cost within the reach of every farmer. Present prices are especially favorable and thousands of Farmers' Mutual Companies are now organizing so as to build their lines this Spring. Write us to-day.
